

The main aim of the work is to analyse the minor place-names found in the territory of four villages in the region of Central Bohemia.

As a consequence of the interdisciplinary nature of this issue, the introductory chapters deal with the geography, geomorphology, history and dialects of the region. The next section provides an overview of the theoretical conclusions which have so far been made in the study of Czech anoiconyms.

The main part of the work focuses on the analysis of the anoiconyms. Special attention is given to their language formation and the connection with the regional dialect.
