

Abstract (in English)

This thesis deals with the topic of interlibrary loan services (ILS) at general level. In addition, the trends of further development of this type of service are outlined. In specific technical part of this thesis, the development of ILS in the Central Bohemian Research Library in Kladno is analyzed, mainly on the basis of existing records since 2004. The thesis describes the function and organization of ILS in this library at present and taking into account The Concept of Development of Libraries in the Czech Republic for the years 2011 – 2015, including the implementation of internet in libraries, the thesis also lists the possible prospects of development and ensuring ILS in Kladno for the oncoming period.