

ABSTRACT

The present bachelor thesis comprises of the translation and the commentary on it. The source text comes from “Comparative European Politics” and deals with political parties and elections both in the United Kingdom and Ireland. The commentary begins with the profile of the target text and the source text analysis of extratextual and intratextual factors. The remaining chapters describe the translation method and discuss encountered translation problems as well as translation shifts.