Title of the thesis:	Response by Czech Auditors and Audit Regulators to the Financial Crisis

OVERALL ASSESSMENT (provided in English, Czech, or Slovak):

The diploma thesis is focused on analysis of change of behaviour of auditors during the global financial crisis – in the Czech Republic. The choice of the literature is OK – I appreciate that the author used mainly literature from acknowledged journals, I do not like the fact that the literature is fairly limited – for a diploma thesis, I would expect a literature list that would reflect overall interest and understanding of the topic. Also, I miss more application of literature in all the chapters of the thesis – not just in „Literature Overview“. For instance chapter 6 really screams for more literature based backing of the statements provided in the text.

The manuscript form is standard. The text is ordered logically, the chapters have similar lengths, the flow of the text is easy to follow. The grammar and syntax is fine, citations hold selected style and graphic is in line with academic standards.

My major concern with the thesis is its contribution. It seems that the author basically found an interesting article Xu et al. (2013) that examined the same topic in Australia, adopted from this article all her hypotheses and applied its methodology on Czech data. I think that this is something that I would consider understandable, even recommendable, if this was a bachelor thesis. However, this is diploma thesis and thus I would expect greater originality. During the defense, the author shall definitely in detail explain, what is her specific contribution that exceeds the scope of the cited Australian articles. Also, I see in the thesis, compared to the original Australian article, very little explanation on why is this topic important in the Czech Republic? The impacts of the global financial crisis as well as its process in the Czech Republic were different compared to Western Europe, USA or Australia – and this might or might not had impact on behavior of Czech auditors compared to their parent companies in Western countries – I would expect to have some discussion on this issue in the thesis, yet regrettably, there is none. Why? The motivation for analysis of specifically Czech Republic shall be well explained during the defense.

As to the methods used – well, the author mainly used simplified version of the model of Xu et al. (2013) – which seems adequate for the analysis. However, very little effort has been dedicated to explanation of the models – why the author included or not included certain variables – so it is difficult to evaluate the overall adequacy of the deployed methods. Also, I think that given the fact that the application of Xu et al. (2013) model on Czech data (collected by the author) is the only perceivable contribution of this thesis, I would appreciate greater detail on differences between Czech and Australian results.

Overall, I recommend this thesis for defense, however, I would highly appreciate explanation of the author concerning the value added of her thesis. Suggested grade is 2. For convenience of the jury I enclose a link to a version of the Xu et al. (2013) article https://www.researchgate.net/publication/256052842_Responses_by_Australian_Auditors_to_the_Global_Financial_Crisis
