

Abstract:

The topic of this thesis is the education of floorball at lower primary schools in the central bohemian region. The thesis is divided into two parts. The focus of the first part is theory, including all information necessary for the education of floorball at lower primary schools. The second part offers an insight, based on surveys, into what form the education of floorball at primary schools actually takes. This work also includes ten model floorball lessons, which have been tested in an experiment.
