

Abstract:

This bachelor thesis concentrates on child and adolescent criminal aggression and aggressiveness, especially on risk and protective factors of violent offending. Furthermore, it presents studies that examine personality of juvenile violent offenders. Latter chapters present typical patterns of children and adolescents violent offending. The last chapter summarizes actual Czech and foreign findings about robberies and their juvenile and adult offenders.

Based on the presented robbery findings, the purpose of the proposed research is to broaden and update our knowledge of adolescent robbery offenders via combined qualitative and quantitative research design.

Keywords:

violent offending – juvenile delinquency – risk factors – protective factors – robbery