

Abstract

The job description is a brief outline of theoretical approaches to the phenomena of immigration and integration and formulating a research question.

Phenomenological reflection of immigration as open movement of existence as a whole (inspired by the philosophy of Jan Patočka).

A time structure of migration movement.

Historical context of Ukraine immigrant integration into Czech (Czechoslovak) society.

Interpretation of stories (interviews) of Ukrainian immigrants (existential framework, time/historical condition, transformation of cultural and religious consciousness, family relationships).

Spiritual dimension of immigration and immigrant integration as open wandering (escape or seeking the Promised Land).

Integration of immigrants in a network of perspectives.

Conclusion: Integration as a precarious challenge for shattered human identity. (What can or cannot we be?)
