

ABSTRACT:

The thesis is devoted to the problems of communication on the Russian Internet (RuNet). The aim is to provide a basic description and comparison of selected language tools and strategies which the Internet users use, especially with regard to the form of communication (online, offline). In the theoretical part will be described the selected communication tools and strategies on chats and forums, in the practical part will be presented the examples from an analysis of web resources.