

My thesis is focused on training of the staff of Home for Children's Life for extension of focus group. It is a shelter with secret address that offers services to pregnant women and mothers with babies. The intention is to extend the focus group of women and their babies - victims of domestic violence, because thanks to the secret address several women asked in this shelter for help. Social work with these women is specific. The aim of this thesis is to clarify what the staff of Home for Children's Life need to be able to work with these women and their babies.

My thesis is divided into theoretical and practical part containing five chapters in total. The theoretical part explains general domestic violence, specifics of working with women - victims of domestic violence and Home for Children's Life. The practical part contains research methodology, analysis and interpretation of primary data obtained through interviews with experts in the field of domestic violence and with the staff of Home for Children's Life.