

The main theme of my thesis is cooperative teaching at primary school with respect to 1st class of elementary school.

There is the theoretical part which contains the key ideas, changes in the internal structure of educational system, history, strategy and other aspects related to work in groups and cooperative learning.

The practical part concentrates on mapping of situation and sense of cooperation and their change during the school year at primary school. In my research I analyze and give a description of concrete methods and practices of cooperative teaching in 1st class of elementary school and their contribution for progress of cooperative and social skills of pupils.
