

This thesis deals with the constructions of the confidence band for a linear regression model. Basic characteristics of a linear model are given and constructions of different confidence bands are described for models, where the relationship is set by a one variable function. The main focus is on bands of polynomial models.