

Abstract

The first World's Fair: British Colony in 1851: The Indian Exposition at the Crystal Palace. The aim of this thesis is to inform about the first world exhibition, which was held in 1851 in London. The first part introduces the basic facts, delas with the origin and history exhibitions, the construction of Crystal Palace and is actually exhibited. Of course also examines the implications. The second part focuses on a specific exposition. A huge representation at the exhibition were colonial countries of Great Britain, of whom excelled particularly India and so the second part focuses just on her.