

Abstract:

Bachelor thesis investigates the problems about use of the article in nominal predicate in spanish language. The theoretical part describes types of article, types of pradicates where the main pradicade is the nominal pradicade. The last theoretical part applies exactly to using the article in nominal predicate. The practical part of research uses a questionnaire survey to investigate the difference between using the article in nominal predicate among spanish students and among czech students of spanish studies.