

Abstract

Presented Bachelor Thesis Position of the Bohemian royal cities within John of Luxembourg's politics is a contribution to the issue of the king's relationship with royal cities in the Middle Ages. The aim of my work is to analyze John of Luxembourg's approach to the Czech royal cities. Based on analysis of the king's privileges that were previously published, I describe how John's urban politics influenced development of the royal cities in years 1310–1346. Emphasis is placed on privileges in both time and geographical perspective.
