

The dissertation is focused on problems of the development dysphasia of children of early pupilage. It consists of two parts.

The theoretical part concentrates on integration and integrated education, and defines the term of development dysphasia and its symptoms.

The practical part deals with integrated form of education of dysphasic children, and analysis of the problems they face studying Czech language.