

Abstract

- Title: Analysis of the individual game performance of players playing at the forward position during the 2016 UEFA European Football Championship.
- Objectives: Analysis of the individual game performance of players playing at the forward position during the offensive part of the game.
- Methods: We will analyze the individual game performance of players by indirect observation with the help of video footage of selected matches and subsequent analysis.
- Results: By analyzing individual game activities, I found a surprisingly greater number of forwards facing their opponent when going around than forwards with their back towards their opponent when going around. The forwards who were observed most often directed their passes back towards their own goal and not even once did any of them attempt a shot from the goal area.
