

In this desk study I am concerning with transformation of visuality in art base on conception of impression - visual perception. Examples of displacement of the visual perception are shown in particular comparison of turn of the 19th century and modern-day art, culture and essential metamorphosis of image affected by photography. The graphic and didactic part is connected with photography followed by illustrations of painting and experiments with catching the feeling and impression of specific place.