

Abstract (English):

Theoretical part of this document briefly describes current state of LTP standardization on global scale and corresponding situation in Czech Republic according to available literature with focus on digital curation.

Practical part analyses management of NTK digital library, its documentation, processes and outputs in archiving of digital documents based on half-structured interviews with responsible institution employees. As final product there will be comparative study of LTP standard of choice (ISO 16363) and practice within institution which will lay out most problematic areas.

Keywords (English):

long-term preservation, digital information, digital curation, standardization, digital libraries