

Behaviour of rats in an animal model of schizophrenia-like behaviour induced by MK-801

Annotation

Experimental modelling of schizophrenia-like behaviour induced by MK-801, a noncompetitive antagonist of NMDA receptors, was recently designed as a valid model of psychosis. Graduation thesis will deal with influence of MK-801 on locomotor activity and spatial behaviour in active allothetic place avoidance, a spatial cognition task.