

This bachelor thesis focuses on the folk traditions and language of Czech compatriots living in Eibentál, in Romanian Banat. The work will describe the historical development of the Czech village Eibentál up to the present. The main aim of this work is to analyze and describe folk traditions and customs during the year. There are traditions that have already existed, but also those that have arisen in recent times.