

This bachelor work deals with the communication through the drawing in pre-school period. It explores whether the drawing or the photograph is more suitable medium for children to decode information and also analyses decoding process itself. The analysis of childrens oral description reception of drawing and photograph is mainly orientated on natural number. It also verifies connection between repetition of the - activity and then the ability of oral expressing numbers and relations between subjects in the space of the pictures.