The Role Of The Unconscious In Religion According To Viktor E. Frankl

The topic of my bachelor's thesis is the concept of the role of the unconscious in the religion according to Viktor Emanuel Frankl. The first part contains a short introduction to the perception of the terms the unconscious and religion in different psychological schools, particularly the view of Sigmund Freud and Carl Gustav Jung.

The core of my theses is a comparison between varied psychological approaches to the question of the relationship between the unconscious and religion, and a determination of how does the Frankl's concept differ from others.

The motivation to write this theses is my personal interest in the work of Viktor E. Frankl and his psychological approach to religion.

Key words: the unconscious, religion, psychology, logotherapy, Frankl, spirituality, the implicit God, the will to live.
