

Abstract

This work tries to explain the function and ground rules of using the videoreferee at football. The presentation of this phenomenon at modern football which is so far tested, is the aim of this work. The solution used the method of analysis of selected football matches and the method of questionnaire to find out the knowledge and view as for the videoreferee.

The research has showed that the decision-making objectivity increased by 6% after the videoreferee had been introduced. According to the survey, introducing the videoreferee into football is considered to be a positive measure by almost 75% of the respondents. More than a half of all the survey participants (63.7% correct answers) also proved to have a good knowledge the video usage rules. On the basis of the data obtained, it is possible to state that the introduction of the videoreferee is still at an early stage when some shortcomings are to be eliminated. However, the videoreferee and its overall contribution for football can be considered as clearly beneficial.
